George Horion in Harper's Weekly.

What's for the babe?

Why, mother's eyes,
Twin patches of those summer skies
That beamed on him in Veradiae.

What's for the child?
With fays to skip.
To taste the honeysuckles' lip—
The butterfly's companionahip.

What's for the boy?
The baunted wold:
The squirrel's nest in leafy hold.
The rainbow's fabled pot of gold. What's for the youth?
To dream of fame,
In shifting sand to write his name,
With sighs to fan a passion's flame.

What's for the man?
Courage to bear
The load of wisdom and of care,
And some true heart its weight to shark

And What's for age?
Pain's prison bars,
Comfort that every trifle mars,
Dinness and fear—and then the stars!

A PANAMA STORY.

How the Notorious Arton Worked a Little Scheme in Rome. Marquise de Fontenoy in Philadelphia Press.

I heard of an amusing story in connection with Arton; the extraordinary adventurer, who seems to have played such an important role in the Panama It appears that while in Rome, Arton became acquainted with a marquis lo-longing to the princely family of Doria and who is married to an exceedingly pretty Venetian countess. Arton soon fell in love with the latter and induced her to take a particular interest in him by professing his readiness to become converted from Judaism to Christianity

At the same time he advised the mar-At the same time he advised the marquis to such advantage in certain speculations that the latter realized handsome profits. Having thus established his footing in the marquis' household, it was only natural that on one occasion when his noble friend was in need of money, he should apply to him for the purpose of helping him to raise it.

Arton thereupon asked him if he had any bonds upon which he could negotiate a loan or sell, in reply to which the marquis showed him some excellent stock worth at least $50,000. Arton, after examining them, exclaimed:

lent stock worth at loast 500,000. Arton, after examining them, exclaimed: "These bonds are for the moment in a somewhat depreciated condition, and are, just now at any rate, not worth more than $30,000. I, however, will give you some bonds that I have which are worth $50,000, and will take these in exchange and shall hold them until their inverses in value are in of course.

in exchange and shall hold them until they increase in value again. Of course, I run certain risk, but I am glad to do it for a friend like you."

Arton thereupon undertook to raise the money needed upon the bonds which he had handed the marquis, and with that object in view, obtained from him warm letters of personal introduction to several of his acquaintances, including Mgr. Folchi, the prelate whose distributed a short time ago from the post of treasurer of the holy see on account of the enormous losses which he had incurred.

he had incurred.

Arton was able by means of the letter of recommendation to sell to Mgr. Folchi for $60,000 the bonds which he Folchi for $60,000 the bonds which he had given to the marquis, and which I need scarcely add were not worth the paper they were printed on. With the $10,000 difference he purchased a pair of diamond earrings for the marquis.

From this it will be seen that Arton won the marquis, besides bonds worth $50,000, the only person being a financial loser in the affair was Mgr. Folchi, or to speak more correctly, the papal treasury.

Disraell Remembered the Reporter.

When Disraeli was quite a young man and first entered parliament, the newspaper reporters in the gallery of the house of commons were accustomed to treat him in the same manner as the remainder of the rank and file and the invarie his speeches. One of the to ignore his speeches. One of the Times reporters, however, named Neil-son, was struck by the pluck and grit of young Disraeli, and after a time not son, was struck by the pluck and grit of young Disraeli, and after a time not only made a point of reporting his speeches, but also induced his fellow reporters to manifest a similar interest in the young man, with whom, however, he was not at the time personally acquainted. Disraeli made a point of finding out to whom he was indebted for this kindness up in the reporters' gallery, and took care to remember his name. Shortly after he became prime minister for the first time he invited Mr. Neilson to visit him at Hughenden, an invitation which the old Times reporter was unable to accept, and a few weeds afterward Disraeli wrote again to inform Mr. Neilson that he had submitted his name to the queen for a civil list allowance of SI,000 a year for life. On receiving the communication Mr. Neilson ladd Disraell's letter before his employers, who, after due consideration, decided that it would be inconsistent with the independence and dignity of the Times for one of the members of the staff to accept a pension from the crown for services rendered in connection with the paper. They, however, determined that Mr. Neilson should not be a loser the paper. They, however, determined that Mr. Nellson should not be a loser by their scruples on the subject, and accordingly presented him with $20,000, that being the capitalized sum of the pension offered to him by the prime minister.

Planten, the Notherlands consul general in New York, an interesting historical solid oak bearing on one end two tablets, giving the coat of arms of the city of Delishaven in gold and enamel and an inscription in silver that 'this stand is of timber taken from the Reformed church, built 1416, at Delfshaven, Helland." The other end has a silver tablet bearing the words: "Presented to Douglas Campbell as a tribute of appreciative esteem for his noble work, "The Puritan in Helland, Eugland and America," from J. R. Planten, Netherlands consul general, New York." Accompanying the gift is a certificate from the administrators of the Delfshaven church that the oak of which the stand is made formed part of the threshold of the church when the Pilgrin Fathers set sail from the place in 1620.

Outrage on an American Citizen. Ostrage on an American Cilipen.
Bostov, Mass., Jan. 19.—Frederick Meys, the American who was under arrest in Port-au-Prince for alleged snuggling, and afterward released, is in the employ of Green, Kanebel & Co., of this city. Mr. Green states that what he learns of the matter is that Meys went from his home, which is back in the town, to the water front and purchased half a dozen ghirts. When returning to his home he was arrested, charged with smuggling and thrown into prison, where he was confined twenty days in a filthy celk. There were witnesses present who offered to prove Mr. Meys's innocence; but the police refused to listen to them. The assistant attorney general, after hearing the evidence of the witnesses, admitted that the charge against Mr. Meys was without foundation.

"BEAST" BUTLER.

A Southern Newspaper Lands Him Safe at Last in the Region of Eternal Brim-

Nashville American (Unreconstructed Dem.) Old Ben Butler is dead! Early yes terday morning the angel of death, acting under the devil's orders, took him from earth and landed him in hell. In all this Southern country there are no tears, no sighs and no regrets. He lived only too long. We are giad he has at last been removed from earth and even pity the devil the possession he has secured. If there is a future of peace in store for Ben Butler, after his entrance upon eternity, then there is no heaven and the Hible is a lie. If hell be only as black as the Good Book describes it then there are not the degrees of punishment in which some Christians so firmly believe. He has gone, and from the sentence which has already been passed upon him there is no appeal. He is already so deep down in the pit of everlasting doem that he couldn't get the most powerful ear trumpet conceivable to scientists and hear the echoes of old Gabriel's trumpet, or thy a million kites and get a message to St. Peter, who stands guard at heaven's gate.

In our statute books many holidays are decreed. It was an egregious oversight that one on the ograsion of the tears, no signs and no regrets. He

An Historic House Burned.

RICHMOND, VA., Jan. 19.-Information has been received here of the burning of the old Howlett house, located on the south bank of the James river opposite south bank of the James river opposite Dutch Gap, and famous in war annals. There was a Confederate battery of artillery stationed at this house during the war and while General Butler was cutting his canal through Dutch Gap his troops were constantly fired upon from this point. It was occupied by a family from Michigan, who lost all their personal effects. The loss was very slight and no insurance.

Tommy Burns Wins His Suit.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 .- In the case of Tommy Burns against the Pittsburgh base ball club the jury to-day gave a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $1,500. The case has been on trial before Judge Adams. Burns, who was third baseman and manager of the Pittsburgh club under contract, was discharged, and brought suit for damages with the result stated. The attorney for the club gave notice of an appeal.

The Use and Abuse of Whiskey. Sales of slocks were 425,000 shares. The stock market to-day showed considerable irregularity in its movement, though the general list as a rule was heavy until the last hour. The list as a rule was heavy until the last hour. The market was dominated principally by the assurance that considerable soid, estimated in some quarters at as high as $4.000,000, would leave the country on Saturday. The situation in Paris, it is thought, will have influence on both the London and New York markets. The special features of to-duy's market were the decided weakness in New England and the strength of Western Union and Richmond & West Point. New England was sold heavily. Rumors were circulated that the Philadelphia syndicate was discoding of its stock, and also that President Parsons had resigned. Western Union crossed at parand closed at its highest fagure. Richmond & West Point was bought heavily by insiders. The industrial stocks were all strong, and ea pecially in the early dealings, all closing materially higher. The conlers were heavy, expedially Readings and Lackawana. The final changes, while samil, showed a majority of losses.

Brendstuffs and Provisions.

Brendstuffs and Provisious.

Ciffcaco, Jan. 19.—Wheat had a sensational drop to-day, failing nearly 2s from last night's close and 4/c from the highest point touched Monday. Title causes were largely local. The furious swing of the lengs and the vicious hammering by the bears chiefly brought about the collapse in wheat. The crowd generally abtributed the selling to the clique, and it was certain that houses which have been all along recognized as clique houses, were doing most of the selling, and after starting the break kept it moving. There was much excitement and a panic among the longs who were outside the clique. There was some rally later on free coverage by shorts, but there was no very important recovery. The action of the clique, or the supposed action, caused no end of comment; amount declared they have not sold much wheat, but have created that impression for the purpose of shaking out the tailers and getting them down so they can buy, cheaper wheat. On the other hand it, was contended that it was legitimate to market their holdings at the prices which have ruled of late, and they resolved to market tas best they could, being sure of a profit anyway, and lout up again on the break.
